Dear Dr. Wang,

On behalf of the University of Dayton, I am pleased to invite a group of twenty students and three faculty from Nanjing University (China) to participate the international geological field course in New Zealand this December 17 to January 2, 2019. This field course is organized and led by Dr. Allen McGrew, Professor of the Department of Geology at the University of Dayton. A total of three faculty and sixteen students will participate from Dayton.

The list of participants from China and the itinerary of the field course are attached to this letter. The Nanjing University group is expected to reserve and pay for their own insurance, accommodation, food and transport in New Zealand, as well as the international travel from China.

Your participation in this program is another important step forward in the collaboration between University of Dayton and Nanjing University, We are confident that the Nanjing University team will enhance the learning experience for both UD and NJU.

Sincerely yours,

Amy Anderson, PhD
Director of the Center for International Programs
